

RINGMASTER, THE REVOLUTIONARY

"Whoever I used to be... I'm not that person anymore."

Three years in solitary without seeing another face—lest you steal it.

Four years ago, you were Capital's greatest celebrity. The ringmaster of the Carnival of a Hundred Faces, a gifted mimic with the ability to assume another's face like a mask—and how did you use your gift? You caricatured the rich, confessed to crimes on behalf of the wicked, even dared to portray the prince as a fool. How the people laughed, but theirs was not the last laugh. The powerful may overlook hatred but they'll never forgive mockery.

What you're in for: When the prince of Capital was found dead three years ago, the only possible suspects were far too powerful to be safely accused. Enter that useful fool the Ringmaster. Perhaps he, in the guise of one of these others...? A performer with the ability to take on any face: who could be a more perfect assassin?

Your plea: "You all know I'm innocent. I trust the judicial process will soon find the true murderer and I will be released."

De Caserta's Notes: "The poor fool was doomed the moment he turned his mockery onto the Great Houses. But some good came of the whole mess, since he's safe in prison just waiting for me to pluck him out and use him."

Title: Under False Colors

"Do I really have to say the password? Look at my face, you know who I am!"

Prerequisite: While disguised as another creature, you persuaded onlookers that the creature was an imposter.

Effect: The first time each game session that you trick an NPC by assuming a false identity, you gain a hero token. When you use a damage-dealing ability against a creature who doesn't suspect that you are hostile, you gain a double edge on the ability.

Complication: Changeling

You're not sure why—perhaps you have fairy blood—but you can change your face as others change clothes. You have the following ability.

Change Face

Your face melts into a new configuration.

Magic	Maneuver
Self	Self

Effect: You can change your face to resemble the face of anyone you've seen, provided they are human. Your face is indistinguishable from theirs, although your voice and body are not. You gain a double edge on tests made to disguise yourself as that person. You have no true face to change back into.

Learn From a Master Downtime Training (Acquire Ability): Kinetic Strike (learned from a null circus performer as part of a dangerous routine)

